Queen's Schulich Leader Scholarship winners had the opportunity to meet with Principal Daniel Woolf on Friday, OCT. 7 to share their experiences as undergraduate students at Queen's and as recipients of the prestigious awards.

The Schulich Leader Scholarships – awarded by The Schulich Foundation, launched by Canadian philanthropist Seymour Schulich – provide significant funding to undergraduates pursuing studies in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics. The awards provide financial support to winners over four years of study.

This year, four first-year Queen's students were selected for the award: Isabel Hazan, Jessie Payne, Jaedyn Smith, and Rebecca Balcom.

At Friday's gathering, several other Queen's Schulich Leader winners were in attendance, including Shing (Sandra) Chan,
