Two incoming students to the University of Saskatchewan have received Schulich scholarships to study in the fields of science, technology, engineering or mathematics (STEM.)

The money will help Alana Krug-MacLeod, 19, a graduate of Aden Bowman Collegiate, pursue her education in environmental biology and Andrew te Linde, 18, who hails from Calgary, as he works towards a degree in biomedical engineering with future plans to pursue a career in pediatric medicine.

The Schulich scholarship program awards more than $5.5 million dollars annually to 100 students who excel throughout high school in the STEM fields. The scholarships are meant to allow students to dedicate their time and attention to their educational path rather than having to worry about where the money will come from to fund their education.

“It is very important that we support exceptional students that demonstrate great leadership and embrace STEM fields,” said Seymour Schulich, the founder of the scholarship fund.

“It is an investment not only in their future, but the future of our country. Their pursuits are sure to lead to key innovations in the years ahead.”
